

$5,000 CEMETERY PAVING JOB LET

Ely Awarded Contract for Concrete Work in Oak Hill.

A. W. Ely, Janesville, was awarded the paving contract for improvements in Oak Hill cemetery by the board of directors of the Oak Hill Cemetery association Tuesday afternoon. The board voted to only run the stretch from the rest room to the main entrance instead of to Summit avenue as originally planned. This action was taken so as to be able to take care of future improvements without a shortage of funds.

The Hayes Fountain Mays Co. and Boos Ford & Sons were the only bidders.

Is $5,400 Job.

The new specifications call for a plain concrete job consisting of 2,800 square yards of excavation and 2,800 square yards of pavement besides a short stretch of four inch gutter near the top of the hill. Bids were received on both plain and reinforced concrete work, but the latter was rejected.

The Ely company gave a price of 45 cents per cubic yard of excavation, $1.39 per square yard of plain concrete pavement and $2.19 per square yard of reinforced concrete. The total amount of the contract under the new specifications amounts to $5,400.

The Boos Ford & Sons quotations were 64 cents for excavation, $1.95 for plain concrete and $2.30 for reinforced pavement.

MAN, HIT WHILE PICKING BERRIES, HAS JAW BROKEN

Picking berries along a road has its drawbacks. One husky Rock county man has a punch that would rival Dempsey but, pugnacious tendencies may land the "cave man" in the courts.

Jay Wittke, farmer, and his family were picking berries along a road in Plymouth township. It is claimed that two farmers approached Wittke as he sat on the running board platform of his car watching his youthful son toddle around the roadside. Some words were exchanged between the men over the right to pick berries along a road and it is alleged Wittke was assaulted.

His jaw-bone was broken by the punch and he was knocked unconscious. The attack was entirely unwarranted, claim the others on the berry-picking expedition.

Mr. Wittke called at the C. H. Steinkamp home Sunday evening. Miss Grace Yates returned to her home at Elkhorn after a week's visit with her friend, Miss Lucille Steinkamp.

22,000 VOLUMES IN LIBRARY HERE

30 Percent of Circulating Books Are Fiction, Inventory Shows.

"Where do you put all the books you get?" is a question that is often asked at the Janesville library, and one that seems only natural when looking over the large list of books received annually. Yet the number of books that people take out is not so large as it seems. The number of books that are not thought of by these people. Although, of course, the shelves are gradually filling up, the room in the reading room is growing continually less, the process is not so rapid as one might think.

The annual inventory at the library, just completed after more than a month's work, shows there is now a total of 22,007 books in the library. Of these, 14,629 are in the adult circulating department, 4,027 in the children's department, and 3,951 juvenile books.

Each book ever put on the shelves at the library has been entered in record books. Thus a total of 33,626 books have been in the library at one time or another. The first one ever entered, years ago, was a cyclopaedia, by Abraham Rees. The latest one was "Ridin' Kid of Power River," by Knibbs, a replacement received with the latest lot of books.

Of the circulating books for adults, just 3,000 are of great variety. Others are of great variety, and are divided as follows: General works, 22; philosophy, 20; religion, 472; sociology, 292; language, 23; natural science, 477; useful arts, 659; fine arts, 649; literature, 1967; travel, 222; geography, 1192; history, 1229; German, 98; Norwegian and

APPROACHING ZERO
There should be no surprise at the fall in the German mark. It is inevitable that it should go to the bottom—to zero at the latest. That is the inflation and paper currency based on fiat of government and nothing beside. News comes from Russia that the gold mined there and in store is equal to the total amount of paper money issued by the Soviet government. The very statement is disproved before second thought. That would be more money gold than already exists in the world. In the face of so much gold on hand the Russian Soviet representatives demand that the allies lend them a billion dollars in gold to rehabilitate the nation. So the gold story fades away. Were it true, Russia would at once assume a position in the financial world so strong as to be able to dictate even to the United States where there is more gold than has ever been possessed by any one nation in modern times. Germany's trouble is that paper has been issued to such an extent that, like in Russia, redemption is hopeless. Such a condition has always brought financial chaos, eventual government bankruptcy, or repudiation and private bankruptcy.

A good pocket piece is a hunk of anthracite coal. It may be a curiosity this winter.

ONCE MORE THE LYNCH LAW
The Gazette has on several occasions analyzed the anti-lynch law and has found no reason to change an expressed opinion that the Dyer bill, which has passed the House and is now before the senate, is unconstitutional and will never pass the bar of the supreme court. It makes no difference how needful such a law may be if it is against the rights conferred by the constitution. It is worse than useless. Doubling as it does with the county unit of a state it attempts to place Federal interference in local matters so far beyond anything ever done heretofore as to be in direct conflict with recently delivered opinions of the supreme court, notably the child labor law decision.

Over-zealous friends as well as politicians who see something of favor to the party sponsoring the law, have evidently gone too far in this. Lynching is a crime and comes under the regulation of the state if there were any way that the Herlin murders, for instance, could be brought to the attention of the Federal authorities for action, we might have had something done, but there is none. The state is its own master here under the constitution.

The Dyer law goes into the political division of the state with which the United States as a government has nothing whatever to do. We interfered in moonshine making long before the Volstead act or the 18th amendment, because it was a tax matter and the constitution makes it possible for the government to raise revenue by internal taxes. But it also does clearly state what are the reserved rights of the states and those rights bar the Dyer law from operation. The attitude of congress is that it will pass the law, wash its hands, gain whatever political advantage there may come from it and let the supreme court decide. That is cowardly and representative of the action of the congressional mind. That is the same kind of cowardice that would prevail should congress be given the right to change the constitution or settle the constitutionality of laws outside the supreme court, as is proposed by the senior senator from Wisconsin. The Dyer law in its unconstitutional provisions is an example of what we might get, and give impetus to that which we have been trying to block for many years—the encroachment of the centralized Federal authority on the rights of the people to local self-government.

BERGER'S SMILE WEEK
Mr. Victor Berger is exuding joy. It is a series of smile weeks for him. Loud choruses come from the Berger sanctum. He has the tiger caged and the animals are jumping for him. "Mr. LaFollette," says Mr. Berger, "has made more progress since the state Socialist convention than in the previous 20 years of his career. His republicanism is rapidly dissolving. Wisconsin is witnessing one of the most radical political campaigns in the United States. And LaFollette will win a victory such as no Republican statesman has won since the days of Abraham Lincoln." We are in for Socialism in Wisconsin according to Mr. Berger. He has worked for it these many years. He could not do it himself as a Socialist. The people would have none of him in the state. But he has swallowed a lump of the republican ticket and smacks his lips at the taste.

Wisconsin's state fair is a state institution. It is anything but local for Milwaukee. It belongs to all the people. Janesville had the first one ever

Art of a New and Strange Kind
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN
Washington—An artist who paints queer, interesting pictures is Leonard H. Wilder of the public health service. A water color of grains of dust so highly magnified that you can see the sharp edges of some grains and the jagged, saw-like edges of others, is one of his latest works. A different style of art is represented by a pen and ink drawing on a studio wall, showing a cross section of a straw tick, with myriads of parasites swimming in its blood.

All about the wall hang other examples of the scientific artist's skill. They are not the sort of pictures that you would buy to hang in the parlor, but they are painted, many of them, for the benefit of the public.
You may have seen some of this artist's work in public health service publications—maps of cities showing disease areas, pictures of the muscular groups of the body, a flea highly magnified, a shoe that will cramp the foot diagrammed to show how the distortion occurs.
In his attempts to show the people the dangers of disease and the great need for preventive measures, the public health service keeps Mr. Wilder busy at his easel making several hundred illustrations a year. The government doctors and scientists have found that a detailed verbal description of how a mosquito implants malaria, parasites in the body is far less impressive than a magnified picture of the parasite entering the proboscis of the mosquito. A short description with the picture may tell how the malaria germ is introduced into the mosquito's salivary ducts and is transferred to the wound that the mosquito inflicts. The observer seeing with his own eyes the enlarged mosquito in all its dangerous ugliness goes out determined to slay the pests with increased vigor.
Just now a number of Mr. Wilder's newest art works have been sent to Rio de Janeiro to the continental exposition.

A microscope has always been regarded as the most useful way of showing scientific wonders to the public. But if you have ever offered a peep into a high power microscope you know that a short glimpse at the object on the plate is rarely satisfactory. Mr. Wilder says he never likes to use any microscope except his own because it takes several days to get used to a strange instrument. So it is not strange that the public, offered a quick view of a few interesting germs at some exhibition, rarely gets a good look. Nothing, however, seemed so convincing to the layman as a microscopic plate.

A few months ago, Mr. Wilder experimented with some water color paintings of parasites on glass. He painted a color painting of a parasite in the bottom of a fairly deep box and a glass cover was fitted on the top. The result was a view that stood out in relief just as the microscopic plate did, and the painting was larger and did not have to be squinted at or brought into focus. The transparencies went to an exhibition in Chicago and doctors and other visitors approved of them highly.

Among the glass paintings sent to Rio de Janeiro are a number of pictures showing the dangers of dust. Mr. Wilder went into the street and gathered samples that he thought typical of municipal dust. He magnified them highly and painted them on glass.
Seven-eighths of the grains had cutting edges. The grains with sharp edges like glass were crystalline products, probably the finest sand. Cinders were in the dust too, and the microscope showed that they had saw-like edges, injurious to the ears and eyes. It took a microscope enlarging the dust 500 times to show clearly the character of ordinary dust.

For another picture, Mr. Wilder took a tiny piece of cotton from the floor of a cotton mill and a piece of wool. He teased them out to the finest possible condition and magnified them. The resulting picture showed that in these fine teased fibers there was a certain amount of organic matter which, if taken into the system of a human being, would cause serious inconvenience. These fine atoms of cotton and wool are breathed in by workers in mills.
He also made a picture of flour dust, which blows about in a flour mill. His picture showed this flour dust which falls on the floor and then blows up into the dry air is largely impregnated with organic matter.

Mr. Wilder's work takes in every phase of art training, and he says that if he had not had a varied career he would not be able to paint all of the pictures government investigators usually request. Before doing government work, he had a long career as a landscape artist, portrait painter, and a teacher of art. He gave up producing beauty and began to make his art service science. His scientific art attracted attention in England and he was made a Fellow of the Royal Art Society.

He chose an extremely difficult field. In drawing a fly, magnified so that it is as large as a hand, the artist must reproduce even the number of hairs on the leg of the insect. The delicate colors of the wings, the marking and the modeling must be perfectly copied, and the drawing must be enlarged accurately to scale.
Much harder, however, is the task of painting from memory. Often a laboratory expert sends for Mr. Wilder to come and sketch a rat or a pig that has been inoculated with some disease. The picture is generally made to accompany a report on the experimental work, and it may be necessary to sketch the animal at once because its condition will change. The artist seizes pad and pencil and hurries to the laboratory. Ten minutes quick work in the laboratory and Mr. Wilder goes off with a drawing of the points that are peculiar to that particular animal. He notes unusual or unnatural color, swelling, and disease symptoms. Then he spends several days making an elaborate oil painting.

Once he sketched a rat that had bubonic plague. There was no way of getting close to the animal without exposure to the disease. The artist had to observe it through the glass on top of a tank.

Two things have impressed the government artist about scientific art. One is that the order of the universe extends to the most minute organisms. The parasite such as a mite or louse has tens of thousands of parasites, perfectly formed, preying on it. These organisms in the tissues and blood of a parasite have as much space to move about as we have in a room.
The other fact which seems to the artist as of paramount importance is the war which disease germs are constantly waging against humanity. In his pictures, Mr. Wilder shows other people as vividly as he can, how germs do their deadly work. Through his art he preaches silently a powerful creed of cleanliness and prevention of disease.

held nearly 70 years ago. This year the state fair promises in many ways to be greater than ever. The Gazette hopes that the young winners of the awards of cups at the Janesville fair will be entered in the state exhibits and that we will get the blue ribbons and banners.

That red blur in the sky about 5:30 nights is the hot oratory of the campaign.

"One thing we can do and do well and that is to give all possible aid to making the American Legion state convention at Beloit, August 17, a grand success. Just say the word, neighbor, and we will go the limit here in Janesville."

"So we are to have the ancient Greek costume as a street dress next year. What is the matter with the Mottoutto army for one summer?"

JUST FOLKS
By EDGAR A. GUEST
HER DAY'S WORK
Small tasks of ceaseless mending through the day.
The window curtains washed and hung once more.
Uncounted things recovered from the floor.
The wreckage left by children at their play.
How many footprints mark a mother's way.
Here is a path forever trampled o'er.
A bed to make, a peddler at the door.
Small work that her hair grows quickly gray—
And yet how fair, the dream she's working for!

The man shall rest when he comes home to-night.
Shall toss once more his hat upon a chair.
The children in wild rapture of delight
Shall fling their shoes and stockings here
And there.
And their tired hands shall pick them up again
And never hint that love has caused her pain.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

Prince Ibrahim of Egypt says he will become a movie actor if Mabel Normand will only marry him. Gosh! We hope she will refuse him. We have had enough shirk stuff.

Government reports that 100,000 automobiles were stolen last year, but didn't state how many Ford's.

Spring Valley, Ohio, minister ran away from his wife. "She is no inspiration to me," he said. "She eats with her knife." He should have taken her out to dinner once or twice before marrying her.

It is very hot weather in Washington, but the report of almost every state primary sends a chill through the capital.

Japan is reducing her standing army. Japan has not reduced that enviable point in empire's progress which she can grab territory without fighting for it.

Russia is now willing to shake hands. But she'll have to wash them first.

Who's Who Today
ENVER PASHA.
A new war lord is rising in the near east to further complicate a political situation that already is decidedly precarious. He is Enver Pasha, former Turkish minister of war.
According to reports, Enver will become czar of a strong Mohammedan state. He is building up from the former territory of the soviets across the Ural mountains in Turkestan. The soviets originally sided against Enver, but now that he seems assured of his success he has defected them.
The Bolsheviks expected Enver to unite the Mohammedans of the region against the British in India. Instead he is now in open revolt against the soviets.
The new leader likewise is hostile to Mustafa Kemal's Ankara government.
He has wanted Russia to adopt a "hands off" policy toward the new state which he intends to build up from the Mohammedan provinces of China, Turkestan and the Caucasus.
European statesmen, already troubled by the Ankara government, have adopted a policy of waiting toward the Turkish dictator who to date has done nothing to arouse the antagonism of any but Kemal and the soviets.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS
Paulsen's Appealing Candidacy
The candidacy of Martin R. Paulsen for the republican nomination for secretary of state at the primary election is a naturally appealing thing. The world war he gave to his country 29 months of patriotic service in the ranks, 10 of which were overseas. Few Americans have a nobler military record—nearly two and one-half years. Mr. Paulsen was born on a farm in Wisconsin and grew up in the state. He is now a resident of the city of Janesville. He is a man of high character and high ability. He is a man of high character and high ability. He is a man of high character and high ability.

LOOKING BACKWARD
FORTY YEARS AGO
August 2, 1882—C. B. Conrad and G. W. Hawley and their wives were in Liverpool and will call for home the middle of the month. The directors of the cotton mill have not decided about building a new factory at Monterey. If they do, it will have 300 looms and will yield about $30,000 a year profit.

THIRTY YEARS AGO
August 2, 1892—Mrs. John Winans has received word that the women of La Crosse have succeeded in raising their quota for the state that is to represent Wisconsin women at the World's fair. The big benefit party for the hospital is to be given at Oak Lawn tonight. Hundreds are expected to attend.

TWENTY YEARS AGO
August 2, 1902—The outlook at present for the tobacco is very good. It is expected that there will be a large yield. Beloit is planning two miles of bicycle paths in their city. The Northwestern is putting in much work in the Madison division, improving especially the culverts. Joseph B. Green has been appointed a government disbursing treasurer and will have offices here.

TEN YEARS AGO
Aug. 2, 1912—The three men who had attacked their companion at the St. Paul depot yesterday, were dismissed this morning in municipal court when it was discovered that they had not come to rob him, and that the report the attack was not all true. A Chicago architect has finished drawings for a new Christian Science church here, to cost between $15,000 and $20,000.

Personal Health Service
By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author
A SWIMMER'S CRAMPS
Anyone who has indulged in the healthful practice of swimming knows that when the water is exceedingly cold one cannot swim so well. The effect of excessively cold water is marked reduction of muscular power and endurance. One must exert more effort to swim in cold water and the muscles may become almost powerless from fatigue. That constitutes "cramps." The wise swimmer will therefore avoid any considerable effort in excessively cold water, and particularly a long swim unaccompanied by a boat.
(So far as Johnnie's visits to the swimmer's hole are concerned, I earnestly advise all parents, guardians and owners of the swimming pool, to forbid further and the muscles may become almost powerless from fatigue. That constitutes "cramps." The wise swimmer will therefore avoid any considerable effort in excessively cold water, and particularly a long swim unaccompanied by a boat.)
How often should one go in swimming and how long is it wise or safe to remain in? Go in as often as you like and stay in as long as you enjoy it. No matter whether your lips look a little blue, provided you feel good and have fun. When you feel tired, cold or depressed, then it is time to come out. Generally it is better not to indulge in such vigorous exercise as swimming immediately after a hearty meal, though it is hygienic to go in after light lunch if you wish.
There is a popular fear of "cramps" from plunging into the water after vigorous exercise, work or play. This leaves one hot and sweating. This may lead to cramps, but cold water, but for ordinary swimming or bathing places there need be no worry. The reaction to the cool plunges is at the more positive and beneficial after active sweating.
Three swims a day are the for ordinary youngsters.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Should a Mother Restrict?
A lady of 45 years tall, weighing 165 in standing feet. Am I overweight? If so, how much? If I am overweight I should like to try your Karell method. I would be glad to be all right. I am nursing a five-month-old baby.—Mrs. E. A. P.
Answer—An average woman, aged, say, thirty, 55 inches tall, should weigh not over 115 pounds. I should be pleased to send you suggestions for reduction if you would send me a recent photograph. Some mothers are better able to nurse a baby if they reduce surplus weight.
My daughter, aged nine months, pulls herself up at the side of her crib, also at chairs, and swings alone. She refuses to walk without me, and is crying or screaming when I am not holding or teaching by her. When she stands her legs look straight to me, but when she is walking her legs become bowed as she is so young.—Mrs. R. H.
Answer—Have no anxiety about any injury from your young lady's spontaneous efforts to stand and walk. It is only precocious stimulation or coaxing of such efforts that may cause harm.
I saw where one was thanking you for your brilliant tobacco cure. Will you send it to me? I have a friend who has been smoking.—Miss M. S.
Answer—I have no tobacco cure. I know of no treatment which will overcome the tobacco craving, except by and with the earnest co-operation of the addict. On your friend's request I should be glad to send him or her her best suggestions.

Cancer of the Breast
Some time ago you mentioned some hospital where one modern scale pamphlet about cancer of the breast, for which there was a charge of 10 cents. Would you mind pointing the address of the place again?—F. P.
Answer—An authoritative pamphlet on cancer of the breast may be obtained by sending 10 cents to the American Medical Association, 535 N. Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.
Quack the Pop
By following your Karell regime and the accompanying suggestions I expect to lose the other 15 I've been laboriously toting around in another motor car and I hope never recover what I've lost! I drink pop. Just in the hot weather. Will it harm me to drink pop? I don't want to undo the good I have done—rather the good God has suggested.—Mrs. R. H.
Answer—Neither pop nor lemonade will make you fat or thin. I do not advise drinking pop, or lemonade, or any other soft drinks for all, thin or fat, young or old. Pop and other soft drinks are commonly adulterated with dyes, chemicals and artificial flavoring, so that in my judgment it is better to stick to the old-fashioned beverages which are available in sufficient variety to please any healthy taste or taste.

Kindly let me know where I can obtain halazone tablets which you recommend for the use of campers and for disinfecting questionable water for drinking. I have tried in no less than five large drug stores and cannot find them.
Answer—Halazone is comparatively new, having been developed by the Abbott Laboratories, 4755 Ravenswood avenue, Chicago.

Pass me that formula for dandruff remedy which has rose water in it. I do not like the ointment.—J. J.
Answer—That was another printer's error, perhaps not unfortunate in this instance. The formula for dandruff is: Sulfuric acid—Twenty grains. Salicylic acid—Twenty grains. One dram. Oil of rose water—"Cold cream"—One ounce. This is a very carefully rubbed into the scalp with the fingertips, by parting the hair here and there, and applying it to the scalp. It will not be necessary to wash the hair for a week or two after it is applied. It will not be necessary to wash the hair for a week or two after it is applied.

Q. What is statistics.—G. U.
A. Stripped of technicalities, statistics is a natural atmosphere interfering with the mind in seeing or receiving by radio. It is caused by stray natural electric discharges. They are more prevalent by day than by night and are more troublesome in summer than in winter. Science is working toward a method of harnessing them.

A. The Bureau of Fisheries says that it is not possible to tell the age of a turtle by its weight, as this depends upon locality and the type of food which the turtle has been eating.

The Tattooed Arm

By Isabel Ostrander

What horrible and mysterious power was forcing the three Drake brothers, Wall Street broker, ROBERT, eminent scientist, and ANDREW, recently returned from Australia, to place themselves in such dangerous situations? Some power had forced Robert to deliver a mock address in the public square, Roger to burlesque a scientific address, and Andrew to sit on the parlor floor and play with toys. The three brothers were terrified and without their knowledge.

PATRICIA DRAKE, daughter of HOBERT, a detective sergeant, and his colleague, SCOTTIE MCKINLEY, to investigate. Patricia is employed as a housemaid and Scottie as a gardener. Following a series of mysterious disappearances, which the three brothers cannot understand, he and Patricia were in each other's confidence. Possibly the escape of her spinster aunt, MISS JERUSA DRAKE, to break up her love affair with the late RICHARD DRAKE, has been the cause. Patricia is suddenly summoned by HOBERT Drake.

"It certainly is," agreed Miles, but there was a peculiar quality in his tone. "Are you going back to the city now?"

Zorhaddened and rose. "I wish you would deliver this letter. I can't trust them to the mails and time is an essential factor. It is to Professor Nigel Barton, at the Archaeological Museum."

It was late that afternoon before Patricia put in an appearance and there was a glow of light in her bearing that silenced the reproach upon her aunt's lips.

Roger had appeared at luncheon and was as usual, but later Miles had caught a glimpse of the car in a grotesque, in spite of the mild weather, and wondered whether or not he could have found it. The return of Patricia, however, turned his thoughts to other channels and the arrival within an hour of an unexpected caller banished all idle speculation for the time being from his mind.

The caller was Miss Ora Hawks but the transformation in her appearance was remarkable. If she had not just succeeded in rescuing a lost child, or if her youth had made a strenuous effort to mitigate the inroads of time.

The butler served tea in the drawing room, but the detective knew that although Carter had been sent to summon both HOBERT and Andrew only the latter appeared and that reluctantly enough. Miles loitered in the hallway below trying to catch a word of the conversation between Miss Hawks and her former tutor.

All at once the heavy portieres parted and the visitor reappeared. It was doubtful if she was wearing the pseudo-habit which she had made for the front door, calling back over her shoulder with a quick convulsive catch of her breath.

"No, don't trouble, please. I can find my way. Tell Jerusa I will see her soon. Goodbye!"

It was not the words nor the tone in which they were uttered which made a moment later the detective rooted to the spot, but the dazed look of half-incredulous wonder upon the woman's face and the faint smile of dawning fear in her eyes.

A pungent odor of smoldering cloth assailed his nostrils as Miles dashed the portieres aside to behold Andrew tearing off his scorching coat from which a curl of acid smoke arose and stamping out a tiny bluish flame that darted across the rug from beneath the overturned tea-table.

That three-legged stand! the latter crouched beneath his tech. "Help me get this off, William, never mind the rug."

"I am afraid you are badly burned, sir," Miles ventured.

"Tried to catch the spirit kettle when the table tilted and the blazing alcohol ran up my sleeve!" He groaned in spite of himself and, seizing a serviette, he wrapped it about his injured arm. "Don't bother about that stuff like an ass!"

"Very good, sir."

When this was accomplished Miles sought Scottie and found the latter chuckling to himself.

"What's the joke? Did you see Miss Hawks armed for conquest?"

"I did not," Scottie still smiled broadly. "I'm thinking of the march the young people have stolen on their families. Dick brought the girl back as he promised but she's not Miss Patricia's any more; they bundled old Higgs on the running board and made for the minister's house."

Edna Kent, a matter of fact, only the hands of married women are kissed by men. To kiss a girl's hand would be an insult.

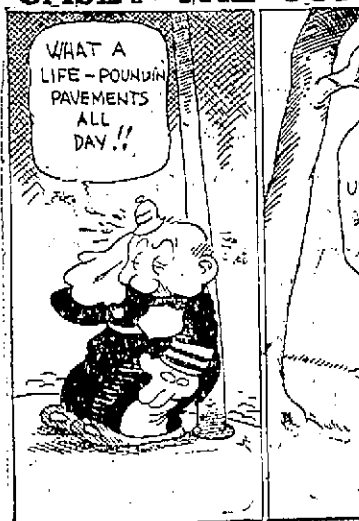

"I heard the other day of a Hollywood producer who was shooting the bouillabaisse of an empress. Suddenly he stopped the performance. He pointed savagely to a small spittoon of pink and white porcelain that stood beside a marble Venus."

"For Mike's sake," he roared, "look at that there spittoon! Can't I never make you boys understand that we're shooting the bouillabaisse of an empress—a royal empress? Take that cheap little old-fashioned spittoon out of here and fetch us a big, nifty, up-to-date bronze cuspidor!"

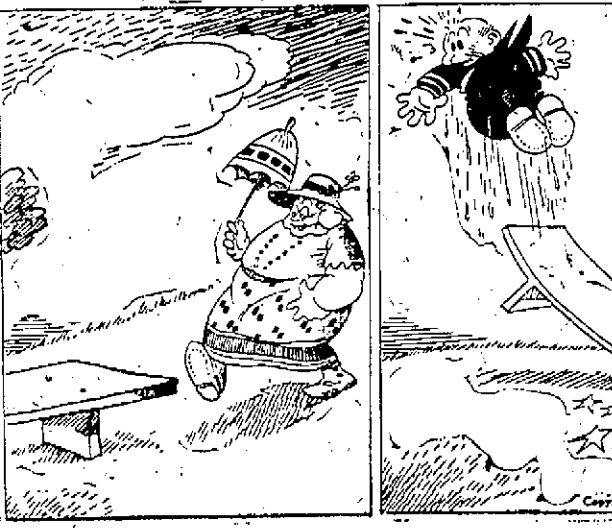

That even a public survey may possess a humorous aspect is evidenced by a story told by a westerner.

It appears that the boundary line between portions of Illinois and Indiana was long in dispute and that at length the government authorized a survey, which was duly executed. The old homestead of Granny Garver, one of the early settlers, was found to lie in Illinois, about 11 feet from the Indiana side. Granny expressed herself as much pleased, remarking that she had "heard tell Indiana was a powerful unhealthy state."

BEAUTY CHATS by Edna Kent Forbes

Even if you cannot get away for a vacation during the hot months of summer you can give yourself a fairly satisfactory substitute without leaving further than your garden. Do garden work for beauty. Take it for exercise and a passing instead of a task. Change your whole mind and only get to the garden when you are tired and you will find it a great benefit.

First of all you want to protect your face, neck and hands while you are doing the garden work. If you are not too exhausted to work, use a little cream on your face and hands before you start. HEART AND HOME

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 18 years of age and I have just come from a fellow I used to go with, but he does not seem to care for me any more. He speaks to me when he sees me and that is all. Please advise me how to win his love back.

HEART-BROKEN LUCKY MARIE. I would be glad to try to win back the young man, because he would see through your efforts and would like you even less. Consider your friendship with him a thing of the past and don't expect to go with him again.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 18 years of age and have been going with a young man about the same age. I thought a lot of him and I guess he thought a lot of me. We have been going to the park on Sunday evenings. The last time we went I made him angry. He tells me that he isn't coming out any more. Please tell me how to win him back.

BLUE EYES. Don't give the young man the satisfaction of knowing that you care because he isn't coming back. His attitude is very childish and you should not flatter him by trying to get him back. Perhaps if you lose some indifference he will come of his own accord.

Since you could not care for the young man I think it was all right to tell him so, provided you used tact and hurt him as little as possible. It seems to me strange that he went about telling people how you felt about him. Don't worry because his friends do not speak in a short time the incident will be forgotten.

1922 JANESVILLE FAIR LOOMS AS BEST IN HISTORY

Rock county fair ever before because of the new interest in blooded stock and the advantages obtained by the county in the fair.

The largest Shorthorn exhibit of any county fair and will have been competition with Holsteins, Guernseys, Jerseys, the Pole Durhams and Browns.

Swiss. Every year by next Tuesday night and reservations for sheep pens have been coming in fast during the week. Three carloads of poultry are expected by Monday from out of the county and a great line of entries is being made from Southern Wisconsin.

Junior Contests

One of the best features will be the junior exhibit of stock. The headquarters for the junior will be in a big tent of the main drive-way. The stock is to be housed in a special tent near the sheds. The farm exhibit will be housed in the headquarters tent and this contest will be under the direction of County Agent R. T. Glasco and Charles Marquette.

All but one calf in the Holstein association contest passed the health test of the federal inspectors. The calves 20 boys and girls in this contest. In addition there will be about 40 other youths in the sheep, pig and baby beef contests which are to be judged in the new pavilion the same as the other stock contests.

In the farm exhibit department the showing has been thrown open to all grain growers with the only limitation that the exhibit must have the year's grain, not hand picked. The decision on which shall consist of a "waterproof" grain grower was left to the superintendents and they ruled for an open competition. The Canadian government is sending to Janesville an extensive exhibit which will be shown here for the first time this year.

A Gay Midway

Then the midway. There will be a double row of the shows and concessions which will have to pass the strict requirements of the fair officials. Even a stricter band than in 1921 will be placed on shows and stands. There will be a ferris wheel, five other riding devices and everything else that indicates to Indians in the matter of tent displays.

The Bower City band will give day and night concerts each day of the fair. The night fair will have the concerts, fireworks and stage acts near the grand stand.

The automobile show will be in an $8 by 160 foot tent on the new property purchased by the association. Contests are to be put on by the dealers and a concert given during the show. The farm implement and industrial exhibits will be along the avenue west of the grandstand. Space on this plot has been reserved for the championship "farmers" golf contest, which will be one of the main features this year. An unusual amount of interest has been created in this contest.

Public Health Show

County Nurse Anna Lutescher will have charge of the public health exhibit in the educational building. Prizes are being offered for the healthiest babies in Rock county. The school children during the last five months have been preparing health exhibits for which liberal premiums have been offered. The state board of health will also have an exhibit. Schools have prepared an extensive list of displays.

Special prizes have been bought new interest in the domestic art and women's exhibits.

Given an even break of luck on weather conditions, Janesville fair officials are confident they will establish new attendance records.

Busy Man's Sport Page

BY FRANK SINGLAU

THE RESPONSE of Janesville merchants to the request for prizes for the Southern Wisconsin country golf tournament at the Janesville fair, Aug. 8-11, is a revelation of the sudden renewed popularity of the old game. Hardly a competitor will go away without taking some sort of a prize with him. Everyone will get more than his 50 cents worth of fun and real value in merchandise.

SO MUCH for the commercial side of the game, the sportsman's side is far better. The picking of horse shoes develops an excellent spirit of the qualities of the true sportsman. Furthermore, it is going to do something else—

THAT something else is this: It will bring the city man and the country man closer together than ever before. For that reason alone, every person interested in business Rock county, and Southern Wisconsin should lend his utmost support to the meet.

THE MAN from the country is going to rub shoulders with the man from the city. He will see him in his true self—as a sportsman. He will meet him under the most favorable of circumstances. He will get acquainted with him as he never did before.

THIS PERHAPS gives many a new idea of the value of sports. It is not a new idea but it is applied to a game that every one is interested in and brings the proposition right to home. All sports do the same thing, but where crowd competition is unusually keen, this value is not realized to such an extent.

American yachts won last of three races with Canadian yachts.

Gray Lag won the Saratoga handicap at one and a quarter miles, fourth event of opening day.

Gerald Patterson, Australia, defeated Phillip North, Portland, Ore., in third round, invitation tennis singles.

Diamond Spectacles—Behind Ray Kopp's steady hurling, Browns won fourth straight game from Red Sox, increasing lead over Yankees, whose game with Chicago was halted in fourth by rain, to two full games.

Cards tie because of rain, profited by the Pirates' fourth consecutive victory over Giants and are within few points of first place—Cobb's men made clean sweep of four-game series with Athletics and went into tie with White Sox for third place. Cobb's two hits increasing his record of hitting in consecutive games to 16—Williams got 27th homer, tying Honus Wagner's record for most hits in one season.

Lee Worth won Matron Stale for three year old trotters at Toledo.

SOME SPORTSMEN, THESE GOLDEN DAYS

Chicago—The Yankees proved sportsmen in their final game against the White Sox. After the White Sox had batted out a lead of four runs, the players did almost everything in their power to prolong the game in hope of it being stopped by rain before the required 4 1/2 innings. They were successful in their aim, as it rained so hard in the first half of the fifth inning after one man was out that time was called, and when cleared later, the field was a quagmire.

The crowd booed the Yankees and Manager Huggins.

Buckets of gasoline, bags and wheelbarrows of sawdust were thrown on the diamond and several local criniples with brooms attempted to get the White Sox field in condition to continue the game which was interrupted in the first half of the fifth inning, with the Sox leading the Yankees, 5 to 1, but it was no use.

SUBWAY BENEATH SIDEWALKS, PLAN

Shallower, Safer, Is Contention of Chicago Civil Engineer.

Chicago Subways under Chicago sidewalks instead of under the city streets is the plan proposed by D. Chase Denison, Chicago civil engineer, who contends that such an improvement could safely be built at less than half the depth of the ordinary type of underground railway and at a tenth of the cost.

Only a small portion of such a subway system as Chicago needs could be built at the depth that would be necessary if excavation should be made under the street proper, owing to the expense, according to Mr. Denison, who has submitted to the Chicago Council of the City of Chicago a plan for a subway system ten or twelve feet deep under the sidewalks instead of twenty-five to fifty feet deep under the streets. It is understood that application has been made to the United States patent office for protection of the plan, which Mr. Denison believes applicable to other cities.

GERMANY TO LEAD REBUILDING RUSS

Reports of Nation's Bankrupt Condition Denied by Returned Tourist.

The city of Chicago owns the streets of the city including the sidewalks up to the building lines. The city has the right to lease to the surface lines the space under the sidewalks for the car lines. This space is now used, if at all, chiefly by business houses for deep basements.

"In the first place, it would dispense with long stairs, inclines or elevators which many people, especially during the rush hours, would not and could not take. A deep subway is also dark, hard to ventilate, and the noise is like that inside of a drum. It is also dangerous, and in case of accident, a trap for humanity.

Under the new plan, glass in the sidewalks would supply most of the light required in daytime, ventilation could be arranged along the sidewalks, and the cars, running on rails, would be in motion forcing the air out in front of them and drawing in fresh air behind them by suction.

LOST IN WILDS; LIVE ON SOUP MADE FROM SKINS

Prince Rupert, B. C. — Lost in the mountains, Peter Stafford and his wife were found in the last stages of starvation by two constables on the Kays river, 32 miles from Skeena mills. The couple had not eaten food for 26 days, keeping alive on soup made by boiling strips of animal skin. Stafford's condition was pitiful. He has been suffering from tuberculosis for some months. How he was able to survive his terrible experience is a mystery to the constables. The wife and her two children were discovered in a small tent, pitched under a big tree. The man, too weak to move, was placed in a canoe and the woman was assisted along the shore and kept for 22 miles from the railway was reached. Here they were left with friends, with enough food to last weeks, and a store of medicine.

PAIGE & JEWETT
USED CARS.
Why we Must Tell you
the whole truth about our Used Cars.
If a house is built to last 50 years and is 5 years old you can hardly buy it at 10% under the market price of similar new houses.
But an automobile that is built for 50,000 miles and that has gone but 50,000 miles, can be bought for a great deal under 10% off the price of a new car.
That makes the used car a real bargain for you if you know what you're getting. To make it a bargain you must know the real condition of the used car.
The used cars which we offer were received by us from our customers in this community.
We accepted them as cash in part payment for new Paige cars, and so have, in effect, purchased them with our own money. We insist on knowing their real condition before we invest in them.
When we receive these cars we go over them thoroughly in our shops, and still more fully determine their exact condition. Many of the cars we offer are completely overhauled, and worn parts replaced with new wherever necessary. Paint and upholstery are put in the best possible condition so that they will look like new as well as perform like new.
We tell you the truth about these cars—their past, as well as their present. We cannot afford to do anything else, as we are in business in this community to stay.
Looking to the future we know that a sound business can be built only on the basis of the satisfied customer. We can only build a
